

I think it's worth going to that new art exhibition downtown.

Really? I'm not sure I can manage much time this week.

Even if it's just for a couple of hours, it's a great chance to see some modern art.

What time of year is it open?

It runs all winter, so the timing is perfect for now.

I've heard they have some cubism pieces.

Yes, and the gallery is in a pretty old building that's lovely to wander around.

You've sold me on it! I might go this weekend.

You should. Last time I went, it was pretty much empty, so no crowds.

That's a relief. I hate busy exhibitions.

Plus, the gallery staff are elderly art experts who share interesting stories.

Sounds charming. Do they explain everything in English?

Mostly, but I picked up some new art terms just by listening.
